

QuinStreet ●●● 10400 Linn Station Road, Suite 100 ●●● Louisville, KY 40223

Enabling an Enterprise-wide, Data-centric Operating Environment

Although access control (AC) currently plays an important role in securing data services (DS), if properly envisaged and designed, access control can serve a more vital role in computing than one might expect. The Policy Machine (PM), a framework for AC developed at NIST, was designed with this goal in mind. The PM has evolved beyond just a concept to a prototype implementation and is now being directed toward an open source project.

The attached zip file includes:

- Intro Page.pdf
- Terms and Conditions.pdf
- DataCentricOpEnvironment.pdf