Microsoft SharePoint 2010 Reference Guide

Microsoft's SharePoint Foundation 2010 is a web application platform widely used as a powerful collaboration tool. SharePoint is primarily used for web content management and document management systems, but SharePoint offers pre-defined applications for extranets, intranet portals, enterprise-wide search functionality, websites, social features and more.

The attached document, provided by CustomGuide, gives users an at-a-glance reference guide to SharePoint 2010, including working with the Ribbon interface, permission levels, surveys and discussions, wikis and blogs.
